ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A process for producing an immunoabsorbant material, a surface of which comprises a molecule which incorporates at least a binding side of an antibody, which process comprises the step of exposing a solid surface of a material to a solution of a molecule which incorporates at least the binding site of an antibody such that the molecule adsorbs onto the surface, characterised in that the molecule is an antibody fragment attached through a covalent chemical bond to a second protein which is not the remainder of the corresponding antibody.
